

When little Myah came to the U.S. from Guatemala to join her new family, no one fully understood the joy she would bring. Her family discovered an instant bond. Her new big brother, Sam, who wished for a little sister, was completely over the moon.

Years later on a family vacation, Myah was showing signs of illness. Ultimately, Myah was diagnosed with an exceptionally rare medical condition called eosinophilic fasciitis – a condition that affects only about 250 people worldwide and causes extremely painful inflammation. Even after treatment began, the pain was so severe her family could do very little to console her. She didn't want to be held – even getting out of the car was painful.

While the family considered a trip to Mayo Clinic and consulted with her ThedaCare pediatrician, Dr. Jennifer Hunt, ThedaCare announced its Mayo Clinic Care Network membership. For Myah, this meant avoiding a long, painful car ride. For her family, it meant greater peace of mind. Mayo Clinic confirmed Myah's care plan – letting her family know they were on the right track.

Since 2013, ThedaCare doctors have submitted nearly 200 eConsults for complex cases at no additional cost to patients. Of this 200, 86% could still be treated locally.

ThedaCare is known for complex care. And now, you can have even more peace of mind in your local treatment plan.

You first. Just as it should be.
